

I'm trying to build a wiki directory of psychoanalytic training institutes in New York City. I'm attaching a directory of such institutes that's about ten years old, as well as a link (<https://thewolfden.nyc/nyc-institutes/>) to the beginnings of a wiki along the lines of what I have in mind. I'd like your help in building out such a wiki, beginning with the data in the aged directory

The comprehensive database structure for psychoanalytic institutes was created to organize detailed information about each institution, including their location, programs, accreditation, and theoretical orientation. This structured data allows for easy access, analysis, and summarization of the institutes' characteristics, which is useful for research or informational purposes. The summary by theoretical orientation provides a quick overview of the distribution of institutes across different psychoanalytic schools.

I am creating a comprehensive, structured wiki page in markdown format that details psychoanalytic training institutes in the New York City area. This includes sections on the introduction, how to use the wiki, an alphabetical list of institutes, their theoretical orientations, geographic regions, licensure and degree requirements, training formats, accreditation, special programs, and how to contribute. This structured content will serve as a detailed resource for prospective students, clinicians, and researchers interested in psychoanalytic training in NYC.
